

Major In Philosophy Proposed; Frat Liberalization Seen Pending

Frats

Certain reliable sources have indicated that regulations on membership in social fraternities will soon be liberalized.

According to William Weston, '68, President of the Student Governments, "A tentative decision has been made and although no details can now be divulged, I can say this much: The decision will be to the greatest advantage for both the members of the student body and the Administration."

No official word has been received concerning the nature of the change, but a series of interviews conducted within the past ten days indicates that some change will be forthcoming.

During an interview held with Father Sellinger on October 3, the question of fraternity membership was raised. At this time, Fr. Sellinger stated that fraternities at Loyola were an open issue, and that certain members of the student body had presented him with a proposal to change the present regulation.

Furthermore, he stated that a meeting was scheduled for the next day concerning clarification of the regulation itself and certain implications which followed from it. The meeting would then deal with the fate of frats here at Evergreen. Those scheduled to attend the meeting were Fathers Sellinger, Kelly and Bourbon, Dean McGuire, and student representatives Bill Weston, Bill Curran, President of the ASO, and ASN president Gerry Smith.

Definite results from the meeting were not made known. As it now stands, memberships in fraternities, "is a very serious violation of the publically stated policy of Loyola College and will be treated as such."

Donnelly Becomes First Lay Trustee

The Very Reverend Joseph A. Sellinger, S.J., President of Loyola College, announced that at their recent annual meeting the Members of the Corporation of Associated Professors of Loyola College had elected Edward John Donnelly as the first layman in the 115 year history of the College to serve as a Member of its Board of Trustees.

Mr. Donnelly has been serving as Chairman of the President's Board of Loyola College together with a group of prominent Baltimore professional and business laymen.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Donnelly graduated from Loyola High School and Johns Hopkins University. In World War II he served as a lieutenant with the Navy in the civil engineering corps. After working with the Greiner Corporation from his college days, he has risen to become a partner of that firm.

He has been involved in work on the Chesapeake Bay Bridge, the Harbor Tunnel, Friendship Airport, and the Kennedy Expressway.

Student Government Takes Control of 74 Hour Game

Commencement of student planning has followed the receipt of tentative Administration approval for this year's 74 hour football game with Towson State College.

Following the ground rules set up by the Dean of Men, organization of all vital areas has been begun by the various student groups responsible for the structure of the game.

Direct control of the affair will be in the hands of William Weston, '68, President of the Student Government.

All that is needed for high gear activity on the game is the formal letter of approval from the Dean of Students at Towson State. This letter is expected to arrive any day, according to various student leaders, along with the structure of the Towson segment of the seven man Executive Committee. This Committee will be responsible for the many on field activities related to the game.

On the Loyola side, the representatives will be John Knott, Larry Evans, and Tim Spigelmire.

The Cosmopolitan Club has sent the school its official endorsement of the game, its promise to serve on all committees to facilitate the success of the game, and its assistance in clearing up all legal problems which might be entailed by the game.

According to the Loyola triumvirate "the students involved in the planning of this game intend to work all out and we are sure that with this year's outside assistance, the game will be an even greater success than last year."

Wanner Removed from Exec. Board

The Executive Committee of the Student Government has recently undergone a few changes.

The main reason for this was the dismissal of Craig Wanner as Treasurer. During a recent interview with Student Government President William Weston, it was noted that Mr. Wanner's dismissal was brought about principally because of his negligence of the duties assigned him as Treasurer.

One of his outstanding tasks was to prepare a budgetary formula for the Student Government take-over of the Activity funds. Although he was repeatedly reminded of this important project, Mr. Wanner failed to complete this project.

However, this was not the only reason for dismissal. Some of his actions in the presence of the Administration were a source of embarrassment to the Student Government.

As a result of the circumstances Mr. Weston was forced to relieve Mr. Wanner of any further duties. Article II, Section 4 of the Constitution, which states

"The term of all appointed officers and members extends to the assumption of office by their successors. All appointed officers serve at the pleasure of the person committee, or organization by whom they were appointed. In the case of the Executive Board however, the advice and consent of the Student Senate is needed to remove an officer enabled Mr. Weston to dismiss Treasurer.

Confirmation of the dismissal came at a closed meeting of Student Senate on Oct. 13.

James Brennan, formerly Parliamentarian for the S.G., fills the office of S.G. Treasurer while Sal Anello takes the place vacated by Mr. Brennan.

Despite these changes, the Student Government continues to make progress. Louis Goldberg, Secretary, is currently working with Mr. Kirwan on the feasibility of extending the hours of school library. This would benefit any student who finds he does not have sufficient time to use the library because of a full schedule of classes.

Later this month the Student Government will also distribute student Directory to every student. The Directory will include names, addresses, and phone numbers of all full-time students Loyola College. This is the first time in the history of Loyola that such a directory has been published.

The Student Government has also approved the formation of Philosophy Forum as a recognized activity on campus. Finally, it has been announced that a student referendum on the new Constitution will be held at the end of the month and Freshman Elections will be held on November 17.

Plans Set to Choose Homecoming Queen; Winner to Be Decided by Six-way Ballot

Information on beauty, food, and how to enjoy both has been released by the Homecoming officials.

Ed Martel '68, class president and chairman of the Queen Committee has placed Kim Doyle '68, vice-president of the senior class, in charge of entrants for the queen contest. Tentatively, Kim Doyle will receive pictures of all queen nominations from the classes and name a committee for final selection.

Announcement of the winner will be made during the halftime of the Homecoming game by the college president, Father Sellinger. She will be crowned by the Alumni president, Mr. Maurice Bozell, and be presented with flowers by Fr. Sellinger.

Pictures of prospective girls are being accepted by the committee and a runoff will be held by balloting outside of the cafeteria based on the pictures. The ROTC Division has named last year's ROTC Queen as representative. The Evening Division, meanwhile, has named last year's Evening College Queen, Rosemary Vinci, to be its candidate in the contest.

The Luncheon Committee is being headed-up by Dick Kotasenski, senior representative to the Alumni. The Committee has arranged for a catered buffet to be held in the Cafeteria.

Presently, Mr. Kotasenski is enlisting students to help serve and set-up tables. Students who help will be given free dance tickets and may sign up in the SCU office in Millbrook House or leave message in Dean of Men's office.

Tickets go on sale in the Cafeteria lobby this week and remain at $7.50 for students and $22 for parents and Alumni. The fee for the students includes two luncheon tickets and a dance ticket. Both the gym and Cafeteria will be open for dancing and the price includes set-ups and refreshments.

Freshmen Praise Orientation, But Cite Points For Improvement

by Ray LaVerghetta

In every new academic year, after the inevitable chaotic beginning has gradually subsided, it is profitable to evaluate the program employed for freshman orientation. The most accurate source of such evaluation lies, as is logical, in the freshmen themselves. And among them, or at least those approached, is held the general feeling that the over-all program was rather good, that is, good in the sense of helpful.

There were a number of recurrent criticism, both favorable and unfavorable, stated by a good majority of the freshmen questioned. Since these were the ones most commonly noticed, it is safe to assume that they merit at least a superficial consideration.

Most freshmen felt that the general make-up of the program was adequate. They agreed that Monday's speeches, tour of the campus, and introduction to one's respective department definitely helped to orient them to college life. The same opinion was expressed relative to Tuesday's and Wednesday's discussions of previously assigned reading matter, and to the picnic and barbecue.

Many freshmen thought the tips given by upperclassmen constituted one of the really helpful aspects of the entire program. Also, there were very few who failed to comment on the impact which Father Sellinger's speech had on them on the first day of orientation. Especially generous in their praise about this were the dorm students who just plain "felt better" after hearing Father speak.

So much for that which is favorable. Those students asked also cited several possible improvements in the program. Among those, there were four areas which were frequently mentioned. First, nearly everyone had something to say about too much emphasis on freshmen getting acquainted with the school and with study methods, and not enough on getting acquainted with each other. They saw as a consequence of this a limited enjoyment of the social activities such as the barbecue and Rugby game.

Secondly, many were puzzled as to the "ultimate" reason for the teachers' presence at the barbecue, since the latter didn't bother to identify themselves.

The third basic complaint was voiced by every freshman approached who resides in the new dormitory. Each one felt that the freshman mixer should have been held prior to the dance, since their dates "had been left home." Having the mixer precede the dance, then, would have given them the chance to meet a few girls and possibly get a date for the dance. A few on-campus freshmen regarded this as an example of a program possibly designed without the boarder in mind.

The last common criticism consisted in the fact that since freshmen are familiar with neither the faculty nor upperclassmen, they shouldn't be obliged to attend a function as remote to them as the Honors Convocation.

Orientation is over now, but for others it hasn't begun. That is why this criticism is important.

Hard Knocks, Dirty Fatigues Mark Leadership Company

Pants, grunts and groans characterize the training now being undergone by the MS III Cadets, who comprise Leadership Company of Loyola's counter-guerrilla battalion.

The MS III's are currently involved in two rigorous training phases, in keeping with the approach toward improving the physical condition of the battalion.

The first of the training phases initiated at last week's Leadership Laboratory was the rugged "Pugil" stick training. This particular training is designed to give the cadet the opportunity to develop coordination, aggressiveness, and a competitive spirit.

Prior to this training, the cadets received bayonet instruction to familiarize them with the various thrust and parry movements. By using "Pugil" sticks, which are made of wood and padded on both ends, the MS III's got the chance to put into practice what they had learned during bayonet instruction.

In addition to the sticks, the cadets are equipped with helmets, heavily padded gloves, and girdle pads to prevent serious injury. The cadets are paired off against each other and compete to knock their opponents off balance.

The second novel training exercise consisted of tactical training of the individual soldier. This phase is primarily designed to teach the cadet how to move on the battlefield while taking maximum advantage of cover. Two courses have been constructed on the North Campus Annex to simulate battlefield obstacles.

The more gruelling of the two courses is the crawling course. The cadet is required to negotiate three wire barriers by utilizing the low crawl, the high crawl, and the supine position.

The second course emphasizing speed is rushing. Here the cadet must run to marked stakes, hit the ground and assume a firing position, roll to another marked stake and take up a firing position. Overall the training is designed to better prepare the MS III's for summer camp.

Short Jokes & Auto Chases Punctuate W.C. Fields Films

by Mike Vaeth

"There is nobody who makes bad movies more funny than W. C. Fields," said Otis Ferguson. He was speaking in November, 1941, concerning "Never Give A Sucker An Even Break."

Exactly what the title has to do with the movie is anybody's guess. This movie is an old time farce much like the new time farces of Peter Sellers. And it is rife with short, quick jokes (?) similar to those heard in Beatles' movies. For instance, you might hear, "The best cure for insomnia, I always say, is lots of sleep," (said with a W. C. Fields nose, of course).

No matter how many automobile chases you may have seen, this one still has you gasping for breath before it is half done.

For those of you who like to gasp for other reasons, as an English teacher once said, "You won't find much skin in this one," but the glorious young Gloria Jean will touch any fourteen-year-old's heart.

"The Bank Dick," currently showing with "Never Give A Sucker An Even Break," will keep you chuckling, even though the gags are much the same. For instance, the car chase isn't quite as funny (you don't start gasping for breath until near the end). During this feature, you'll start to hear people all around you talking out loud through their noses.

If you are a Serious College Student, don't let a chance like this pass through your fingers. If you don't have a sense of humor, at least you'll have a sense of History. And if neither of those is present, just think of the next Trivia game when you'll ask who the assistant director was.

Center Stage Will Present A Series of Monday Plays

The Center Stage Repertory Theatre has introduced a new series of Monday evening plays entitled Off Center. The series includes new plays, plays not attempted in the regular season, and evenings with members of the company, staff, and other outstanding Baltimore dance and theatre people.

On October 16, the company will present "The Marriage Proposal" by Anton Chekhov and "A Serpent's Tooth," composed of family scenes from Shakespeare's "King Lear." On October 23 The National Theatre of the Deaf will make its only Baltimore appearance with four plays by professional deaf and dumb actors designed for speechless audiences.

"Krapp's Last Tape" by Samuel Beckett and "Plays" by Gertrude Stein will be offered on October 30, the former starring David Rohan Sage in the title role. Peter W. Culman's production of "Pictures in the Hallway," a staged reading of the youthful volume of Sean O'Casey's autobiography, will be presented by the company on November 6 and 13.

Liz LeBlanc and Dance Company, one of Baltimore's leading modern dance ensembles, returns to Center Stage on November 27 with new and old works. The final offering of the year will be Bertolt Brecht's "A Man's A Man," to be presented on December 4, 11, and 18. The play is directed by Peter Mumford and features a new musical score composed by Fred Roffman.

Future plays will be selected from the works of James Joyce, Edward Bond, Jean Genet, and Dylan Thomas.

All performances start at 8:30 P.M. Ticket prices range from $1.50 to $4.00 and no seats are reserved, with the exception of the October 23 performance.

We'll Provide The Popcorn

Razz-ma-tazz and all that jazz—crazy, man, crazy—wet and wild. It's Wednesday, crazy Wednesday. Like cool, man, cool AND corny. Popcorny, Cidery, too. With Laurel 'n' Hardy—all on October 18, 7:30-10:00 p.m. in McDavit Lounge, Mt. St. Agnes.

"An experiment in entertainment"—that's what it's called. Who Knows? It worked for Scott Fitzgerald. And are we so different? Perhaps, but that's what MSA's Social Committee is asking as it furnishes old-time slapstick flicks and an atmosphere of raccoon coats, striped blazers, and rah-rah shoes. It's worth a try; anything is. At least a laugh. What's to lose? Only fifty cents. The past is prologue to the present.

Singers Are Being Sought For Combined Glee Club

Thirty singers from Mt. St. Agnes College have invited Loyola students to join them in forming a combined glee club, according to an announcement made last week by Fr. William J. Byron, S.J. assistant professor of economics. Fr. Byron, who will direct Loyola's participation in the combined chorus, reports that the response to the MSA invitation has been disappointingly light. More recruits are needed from the Evergreen campus where glee club activity has been dormant for several years.

Interested singers, particularly from the Freshman and Sophomore classes, are urged to leave their names at the office of the Dean of Studies or the Dean of Men. Rehearsals will be held once a week at Mt. St. Agnes.

Encounter '68

It has been announced that all Evenings of Decision in the Encounter '68 religious renewal program have been cancelled. Those students who have volunteered to make Evenings of Decision will be asked to transfer to Sundays of Encounter, in order to consolidate and improve the Encounter '68 program.

Taboo

While casually browsing through some crusty old constitutional law books we co-incidentally thumbed to a thirty-four year old amendment to the U. S. Constitution. This particular amendment repealed an amendment which had been on the books for fifteen years. With the passage of the amendment the era of the speakeasy came to an end and avidly awaited by most of the citizenry.

Oddly or possibly naturally enough, the effects of this amendment have not been felt in all quarters of society. In fact, for nearly a quarter of the student body of Loyola's Day College the Eighteenth Amendment might just as well be effective today.

It is apparent that the Administration, or whoever makes the rules around here, deems prohibition to be an inflexible policy regarding the student's social functions on campus. The mere mention of alcoholic beverages in connection with Day College social events is strictly taboo.

As Evergreen's premier Homecoming approaches, an inequity in the program becomes more glaring and more irritating. According to the current rules for Homecoming, Alumni, parents, and Evening College students who are twenty-one are allowed to bring alcoholic beverages to the Glenn Miller Concert-Dance. This privilege is being denied those Day College students who have attained the legal drinking age in the state of Maryland.

Loyola is not a four year junior college. Approximately one-fourth of its student body is twenty-one. Unfortunately, the College does not recognize a legal age for its day students. It is even possible for a student to graduate without ever having come of age and hence without having developed into the proverbial well-rounded man, whom the Catholic liberal arts college holds such lofty regard.

The Homecoming is another instance which has brought to light the nebulous quality so pervasive of Administrative decisions. One-fourth of Loyola's student body, a responsible minority, desires to know why it has been categorically denied the privilege of bringing alcoholic beverages to the Homecoming.

Why has a double standard been established? Why can Evening College students of legal age exercise a privilege denied their Day College counterparts? Is it too excessive to demand that the policy of prohibition, which has become an Administrative fetish, be relaxed for an occasion which has taken one hundred and fifteen years to be realized? The student body deserves some cogent answers.

LOYOLA EYES

Alumni, Parents, And Students Unite In Effort To Realize First Homecoming

Ed Fishel

In just twelve days, Loyola College will stage its first Homecoming. Four persons have been planning and working on this event for over a year. The president of the college has given over $2000 towards deferring the costs for student and alumnus. A Homecoming Committee comprised of 40 persons has worked feverishly for more than two months in preparation. How come? What is a Homecoming?

Traditionally, Homecoming has been just that, a "coming Home" of the alumni, back to their alma mater to pay homage to their past heroes and renew old acquaintances. It has served the alumni as a traditional social event and served the school officials as an opportunity to impress upon the alumni the changes in staff and facilities of the college.

Obviously, it is a mutually beneficial affair. Generally, it is centered around an athletic event—football where possible, soccer otherwise. Recently, however, there has been a push to bring the parent and student on campus as well. Such is the case here at Loyola.

Plans Begun a Year Ago

For over 115 years, Loyola has been without a Homecoming and in twelve days, it will attempt its first, if faltering, step toward making this a meaningful tradition. This idea was born in the minds of two students last year at this time.

The plans were presented to John Connor, then the Alumni representative, and received immediate interest from the "new breed" of alumni, for they had been hoping to have such a large affair. They wanted to break the old image of the Alumni Association and create a meaningful coalition between the student bodies past and present. The fact that most alumni had not seen the school since they left was impressed upon the minds of the planners.

In the spring, a tentative Homecoming Committee had been set-up by the new student government president, Bill Weston. Representatives then met to consider the objectives of this Homecoming and the best means to implement these ideas.

The first decision was to involve the student body as much as possible. The reason for this was that Loyola students have traditionally been divorced from their alumni and, hence, have had little knowledge of the caliber of Loyola's graduates. Likewise it was hoped that the alumni would gain a greater awareness of the type of student being admitted today.

In addition, the students have been cut-off from big-name entertainment due to lack of funds. It was hoped that a "name group" could be found that would be palatable to Alumni and Student tastes. Finally, it was decided to have two groups, allowing for varied tastes.

The second major decision was to involve the parent as much as the alumni to afford the parents an opportunity to see Loyola College as a living, functioning organization. Classes will be in session in the morning and labs will be opened to inspection by all persons. In so doing, the parents might gain a better idea of where their $1100 for tuition is going.

Cooperation Required

In the end, however, the major concern was to prove that the administration, alumni, and organizing students could work together as a whole. Regardless of the success of this event, the point has been made very strongly that students, alumni, and administrators can work together on an equal plane.

What's in a Homecoming for the student? A lot, I think. First, an opportunity to "show off" — not in the negative sense, but rather, as an athlete, a scholar, a researcher (biologist, chemist, or physicist), or simply as a gracious host. A Loyola student works hard enough during the year. It's about time that he was given a chance to tell someone that.

Secondly, there is potentially a great deal of social activity in a short period of time... float building parties, a soccer game, and a semi-formal dance.

Thirdly, a Homecoming provides the student a chance to invite a guest and show them the school—all of it.

Loyola is each student's school and his participation in Loyola's first Homecoming is left up to him. In the end, each student will determine this Homecoming's success.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

All letters should be addressed to the Editor and brought to the GREYHOUND office, Andrew White 17, no later than Tuesday for the following week's publication. Unsigned letters will not be considered for publication; but name will be withheld upon request. The editors ask that no letter exceed 300 words in length. In the interests of brevity and rhetoric, the editors reserve the right to edit any letters submitted. However, upon request, the entire text of an edited letter will be printed in a subsequent issue.

Dry Humor

To the Editor:

Evergreen . . . hmmm. There are dry campuses and DRY campuses—we're living in a desert. The word on senior liquor privileges for Homecoming is still NO. And as usual, only NO. Granted, the Administration is not compelled to give reasons for their actions to the student body—only if they have any concern for amicable relations with students. Although ideal, this could not practically be done in all instances.

However, in areas where student interests are particularly acute, and where the administrative action is particularly contrary to student desires, it is deemed incon-siderate not to give some reason.

Practically all participants have 3:00 and 4:00 o'clock classes which make them either miss practice, or, as in the case of the basketball team, schedule practices for late evening. This inconvenience hurts studies as well as hinders the capabilities of coaches to organize a college squad which will give a good representation of the school.

This situation could easily have been avoided with some intelligent supervision, but, as it stands, it must be remedied. Teps should be taken.

Pitchmen Travel to Baltimore U. After Crushing Southern Powers

This Wednesday, Oct. 18, the Hound booters travel to Baltimore University's Rogers Avenue field to take on the perennial favorites of the conference.

The Bees are this year faced with a hardy task in their meeting with the Hounds. Coming off one of the most successful weekend series in recent history, the pitchmen of Loyola are firmly implanted in first place of the M.D. Northern Division.

The Greyhounds travelled to Catholic U. in Washington on Friday, Oct. 6, on the first leg of an all-important Southern Conference road trip. Loyola's hopes for a conference championship rested upon the outcome of these away games at C.U. and Lynchburg. Both opponents had taken the measure of the Hounds in last season's contests.

Against C.U. the Hounds quickly took control of the game. Their sharp passes and strong defense kept the ball in the C.U. half of the pitch during most of the game. This pressure was rewarded early in the first quarter when junior right wing Mike Kelley arched a perfect cross over the outstretched arms of the C.U. goalie and Phil Biedronski headed it into the nets.

This set off a wild display of emotion as the Hounds went crazy. They kept up the offensive thrust and in the next stanza soph Al Jones powered one into the opposite corner of the net past the entire opposing defense.

With this two-nil lead the Hound defense took over and held C.U. to zilch throughout the rest of the game. Thus Kim Doyle and company exited with their first victory of the season and also their first shutout. In this game a significant point which was exhibited was that the Hound offense could score early and thus put continuing pressure on the opposition.

The booters then moved South to oppose the forces of Lynchburg who won the Southern Division last year. After a restful night of "sleep," the booters took the field before a fine turnout of spectators enlivened by a Lynchburg pep rally.

Loyola again showed their ability to strike quickly, as All-Mason-Dixon halfback Bo Szczepaniak blasted one into the left corner of the goal. The Hounds made this stand up until late in the third quarter when Rusty Taylor punched in a loose ball in front of the Loyola nets. The remainder of the regulation time was spent with both sides attacking but failing to penetrate.

In the first overtime stanza, the Hounds completely dominated play and in one quick burst pounded three shots at the unorganized Lynchburg defense. The ball bounced free back to left inside Bela Pallay who booted a screamer into the lower left corner of the net. This tally put the Hounds on top 2-1 and the defense and offense combined in the closing minutes to keep the Hornets from mounting any threat.

With these two victories under their belts the Loyola pitchmen moved into first place in the Northern Division of the MD conference.

On the Southern road trip the Hounds showed their capability to score early and often and to make these scores stand up with terrific defense. These attributes should enable the Hounds to make a strong try for the overall championship in the M.D.

Booters Capture M-D First Slot With 2-1 Taming of Towson State

Hound booter, Bobby Gaare, tangles with a Towson player trying to head a loose ball toward the goal.

The Hound booters played host to the defending Mason-Dixon Champions Towson State, on Thursday, October 12. In the rough and tumble contest reminiscent of the Chilean soccer riot of '64, the Hounds bravely battled back from a 1-0 first quarter deficit to emerge victorious 2-1.

The hard-fought contest was marred by two fights in which members of each bench emptied onto the field in defense of those involved. As a result of the second half melees, two of Towson's linemen and perennial Hound W.B.-A. Champ Len Lewandowski were asked to hit the road.

The Tigers opened the game with a strong attack as the Hound defense couldn't get untracked. As a result, Towson was awarded a penalty kick in the early minutes. As the crowd of 500 looked on, Goalie Kim Doyle made a magnificent diving save to keep Loyola's slate clean.

With this 1-nil barrier facing them, the Hounds came roaring back to take complete control of the game. The pitchmen kept the pressure on the Towson defense and finally, near the end of the second quarter, Phil Biedronski blasted one by the Tiger netminder to knot the score at 1-1. The first half ended with the Hounds continuing to mount offensive thrusts, throughout the final half as they limited Towson to only a few scoring chances.

The offense kept pounding the ball at the Tiger goal and in the final stanza, right inside Rich Schmith placed one perfectly in the right-hand corner to give the Hounds a well deserved victory.

HOUND HOT DOG OF THE WEEK

In the past the GREYHOUND Sports editors have seen fit to commend those individual athletes whose play makes them stand out among their teammates. In like manner we also introduce the Hound Hot Dog of the Week Column to recognize the outstanding weekly play of certain individuals.

It is not often that a Loyola team can come away undefeated from a Southern road trip. The 1967 soccer squad, however, has just captured successive games from Catholic University and Lynchburg, and in the process, attained first place in the Northern division of the Mason-Dixon. Will Cook and Bela Pallay were instrumental in the pitchmen's success over the weekend.

Cook

Although Will Cook is sharing the initial spotlight with Bela Pallay, he is the first Hound Hot Dog of the Week for 1967. Will's outstanding defensive play against Catholic University snuffed countless offensive thrusts before they could materialize.

Consistently tackling the ball away from C.U.'s speedy forwards, Will contributed to the first shut-out of the new season for goalie Kim Doyle.

In addition to his tough defensive play, the junior fullback started a number of Loyola drives stealing the ball from attacking forward and quickly taking it on to the offensive.

Will came to Loyola from Mt. (Turn to page 3)

On Saturday, October 7, Bela Pallay burst into the spotlight with a spectacular goal that gave the Hounds a thrilling 2-1 overtime victory over Lynchburg College.

Bela came off the bench to give inside Rich Schmith a breather and rocked in the winning goal. The score put Bela in a tie for team scoring leadership with Phil Biedronski, Al Jones, Mike Kelley, and Bo Szczepaniak.

Like his counterpart this week, the soph sub graduated from Mt. St. Joseph's where he played halfback.

It is significant that Bela's play has merited "Hot Dog" attention since Coach Jim Bullington (Turn to page 3)

Hampered Harriers Handed Four Straight M-D Defeats

In a span of five days, the seasonal outlook of the Loyola harriers has gone from bright to bleak. With the large turnout of experienced freshman cross-country runners to give aid to the returning veterans, it seemed as though the harriers might win a number of meets for the Alma Mater.

However, this was only ideal thinking. One had not through of the many problems which an athlete might incur during the season. Due to studies, co-captains Tom Wehner and Pat Malloy were forced to by-pass competition, leaving only one returnee from last year's squad, Andy Carter.

Andy, however, after having competed in the first three meets, has been forced to temporarily cease participation in coming meets. Jeff Hild, freshman harrier from Poly on scholarship, slightly injured an ankle while running in last Saturday's meet at Lynchburg. These problems have caused a great hindrance to the team. Thus, the Hounds have lost the first four contests of the season.

On Friday, October 16, the team traveled to Washington, D.C. to face last year's Mason-Dixon champions, Cathloic University. The Loyola harriers put up a valiant effort, but were defeated by a score of 15-50 with low score winning. The team then moved South to Lyuchburg to meet the Hornets. They were defeated in a close match by a score of 23-31.

On Tuesday, October 10, the Hounds met still another defeat at the hands of Johns Hopkins' Bluejays at Herring Run Park. The team made a close match of it is the early running, but failed to place enough men in the initial places to assure victory. Thus, the final score was 24-31 favor of Hopkins.

The week closed with the Hounds meeting Towson State on October 12. Although Andy Carter's services were lost by the team, they put up a strong and determined effort. Frosh Cal Scroggins placed fourth and Frosh Mike Hodges sixth but these were the only bright spots as the Hounds lost 18-43.
